EPISODE 106

The 'Before' House

Originally, the exterior of this three-bedroom, 1950s ranch-style home appeared dreary and uninviting, with no details to give it curb appeal. The few existing windows were quite small, and the roofline was flat and unattractive. Remodeling plans called for the addition of an entire second story with a high-pitched roof, as well as a brand new exterior.

The 'After' House

After seven months of construction, the house has a magnificent new exterior, with beautiful cedar siding, a handsome high-pitched roofline, and plenty of windows that offer lake views from almost every room in the house. The new front door features an eight-paned window insert, and is also surrounded by several large sections of windows.
