

To call Mt. Lady's burps anything less than monstrous would be a massive understatement. Due to Mt. Lady's quirk, even in her regular form, she still retains some of the traits of her giant form, namely in strength. That doesn't just mean her muscles but also her stomach and throat muscles as well. She has an incredibly strong stomach that can not only hold a lot within it, but she has powerful stomach muscles that can clench down harder to contract than a normal stomach can.

As such, when Mt. Lady belches, they're always going to be big and full-throated. Her burps range from really big and brassy belches, the kinds that erupt when someone just has a lot of gas in their stomach. Or they're deep and throaty, with extra rumble and force behind them. That's because her impossibly strong stomach muscles clench down so hard that it just forces all the gas or residual air in her gut to come rushing out all at once, even on an empty stomach. As a result, when she burps, there's always going to be some heft and power behind it. The closest thing she gets to dainty burps are if she swallows air and immediately burps it back up. And even then, she can do those rapid-fire burps almost endlessly, once again, due to how her body functions.

Mt. Lady doesn't have an enormous appetite, but her capacity is so great that if she's hungry enough, she'll gorge herself without even realizing it and not even really feel that full. She'll polish off whatever she's guzzling down and not notice how much she ate until she suddenly lets out a HUGE, raunchy belch, then blinks with surprise, and finally notices how much heavier she feels, until she looks down and sees how much her belly is now bulging out.

When she's eaten her fill, she gets immensely bloated, usually because she's unwittingly eaten enough to feed about a dozen people. So, she'll kick back on her couch, casually browsing her phone while caressing her big, perfectly spherical belly. And because of how fast her metabolism functions, she tends to digest things a lot faster, which causes gas to build up quickly. So as she's caressing her heavy, rounded gut, she'll casually let out these thick, forceful belches, and reply with little more than a relieved sigh and a hearty pat to her belly.

In contrast to a lot of characters who get overstuffed and struggle to burp when their stomach is so full, Mt. Lady doesn't have that problem. Her stomach can clench hard enough to absolutely pulverize anything inside of her. So any air that's trapped between everything festering in her gut will be forced out regardless once her stomach muscles tighten. And in her stuffed state, Mt. Lady is prone to having some of her loudest, most abrasive burps yet. When she's REALLY full, Mt. Lady will slap her round belly and throw her back with the most utterly GARGANTUAN belch you've ever heard. She's one of the rare instances where a burp being called 'wall-rattling' isn't an exaggeration. If Mt. Lady lets out a REALLY good burp and you're in the same building as her, you're going to feel it no, matter where you are.

With her quirk, though, her stomach operates a little differently.

For example, if she ate a lot and was really bloated in her normal form, then when she grows to gigantic proportions, her stomach will quickly shrink down to its normal flat yet slightly curved state. Because the digesting meal within her belly doesn't change size with her. It also digests much faster as a result. So, if she's really full and needs to look in shape for an interview or something, she'll go aside and grow to her giant form and let her meal digest for a few minutes before shrinking down to her regular size. This is also why she has a slight curve in her tummy and why she has such wide hips and thighs; rapid digestion goes straight to her hips and underbelly. She doesn't mind though, Mt. Lady actually loves having a bit of booty and thinks she looks sexy like that.

Aaaand judging from 90% of the comments she reads on social media anytime there's a news break or video with her involved (Which she reads constantly being the egomaniac she is), that's the consensus among a lot of her fans.

This doesn't apply to how her body reacts to a meal though. If something she ate upset her stomach, then when she's a giant, her stomach is still going to be churning and grumbling aggressively. And usually, when that happens, in her giant form, it's going to make her really gassy. Half the times, she'll muffle her belches, erupting with the biggest "muffled burps" ever. These are burps that reverberate in her cheeks so hard that the ground around her still rumbles, and these aren't quick either. They're rumble within her maw for a good few seconds straight before ending with a relieved sigh.

Mt. Lady HAS to hold her burps in if she's a giant within a densely populated area because in her gigantic form, her burps are so big that they can cause literal ground tremors. And if she's gassy enough in her giant form to let a burp out, it's going to be a few of these monsters back to back, which can cause after-tremors. The only times she freely burps in her giant form is when she's in the mountains because there's no real risk of damaging public property that way. She's even used her burps against villains from time to time. In her giant form, she can burp so hard to send villains flying back and leaving them vulnerable to stop and apprehend. Or if they're in a building, she'll swallow a lot of air and burp as hard as she can within the window to rattle them or nauseate them if she ate something really nasty or something that doesn't taste or smell nearly as good going up as it did going down.

On the flip side, if she swallowed a lot of air or had some gas build up in her belly when she was in her giant form, and she shrinks down to size, then that gas is still going to be in her gut when she's in her regular human-sized form. And with all that air in her belly, it's going to bloat her up until she belches it out, and when she does? It will be the single biggest, longest, most explosive belch a person has ever let out. The kind of monstrous burp that drags on for an eternity and never seems to end.

And when it finally does, several big, raunchy afterburps are going to follow because there will just be soooo much air in Mt. Lady's tummy that she's going to have to let out again and again until she finally clears her system.

It goes without saying, but Mt. Lady is incredibly shameless. She knows she's incredibly sexy and that guys will lose their minds over her no matter what she does, so she doesn't even pretend to be girly around them. She's free to be as unladylike as she can and she knows no one will ever be turned off. The main thing is she's the center of attention and she revels in that. In fact, if she sees comments from weirdos online who get turned on if they see her burping in footage, she'll make sure to burp even harder in another story to rile them up.

Aside from the attention she always seeks, Mt. Lady is very casual and carefree. She's not one to get embarrassed by a good burp or even excuse herself half the times. When she burps, she does it to relieve her stomach of any pressure, and when that pressure is gone, her only response is a relieved sigh as she boorishly slaps her belly and rubs it up and down in a satisfied manner. At best, if she's in public or around others when she needs to take things more seriously, if she feels a burp coming, she'll excuse herself to step away for a moment, then muffle a HUGE burp that reverberates behind her lips and fist, then returns when her stomach isn't bugging her anymore.

Mt. Lady is also extremely good at burping on-command thanks to her vice-like stomach muscles. She can effortlessly suck in a big amount of air then very loudly burp it back out. If there's pressure in her gut, she'll take a few gulps of air and quickly belch it up, sometimes, back to back, and other times, as one big, monstrous burp. She doesn't know how to burp-talk, but sometimes, she'll get gassy enough that part of her sentence will just come out as a burp. Those are the only instances where she'll blush and cover her mouth, simply because she wasn't expecting it.

She's not boastful about her burping skills, since it's more just something she does naturally. But she HAS gotten into a burping contest with Fatgum from time to time. Sometimes, it's because she burped around Fatgum and he challenged her. Other times, it's because he burped after filling up ahead of a mission, and her response was, "Pfft, you call THAT a burp? THIS is what a real burp sounds like..." before taking in a few big gulps of air and expelling a monstrous belch that puts the blubbery cinnamon bun of a hero to shame.

And because she has a bit of a butting rivalry with Midnight, who IS far more ladylike and collected (despite her far more sexual nature), Mt. Lady makes it a point to boast around her, casually burping loudly and proudly, and bragging that she can act however she wants and still be beloved, while "older gals" like Midnight are stuck with these prissy ideals of femininity...even though Midnight is only 31 years old. But again, that's largely because Mt. Lady can be kiiiind of a brat, and is very unapologetic about it too.