

Party Planning I

Escrito por "Ina Izumi"

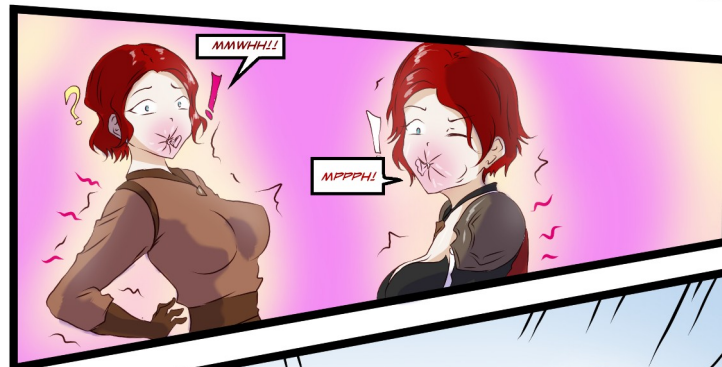

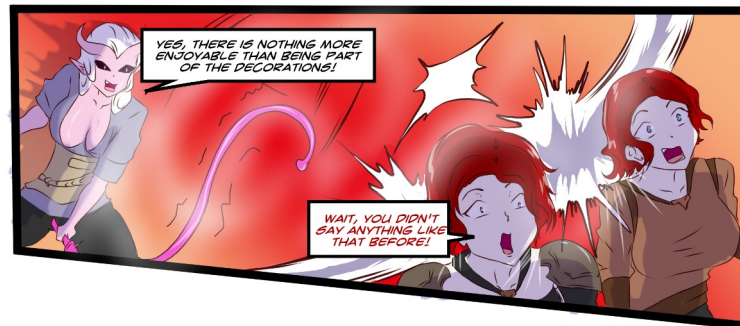

Kyrie (a thiefling who has the ability to transform anyone she wants into any kind of toy she chooses) and Vertigo (a mage with the ability to transform anyone she wants into any object she wants as long as she can imagine it) are having breakfast together while planning what to do next Friday to entertain themselves, since lately everything has been very boring in town and maybe some cultural activity or party will liven things up a bit around the place, especially for them. For this they both planned to have a big party, but they quickly realized that they did not have enough resources to carry it out. One of the first things they realized they were missing were balloons to decorate the entrance of the party. However, Vertigo has a great idea, how about turning Karik and Nika, two of their friends, into the balloons? Getting common balloons at a low price would be complicated and they would not offer any major attraction, but two people turned into balloons will be priceless for them and moreover they will be completely free, and they could approach them as a pretext to invite them to the party since they had originally forgotten to invite them.

That's how, later, Kyrie and Vertigo showed up at Karik and Nika's house to invite them over. The redheads (who are sisters) opened the door and when they were invited to the party at the last minute, they found themselves confused and undecided as they may have planned to do something else together that night, but due to Vertigo's insistence it was impossible to decline, so for now they let Kyrie and Vertigo into their house to talk more about the said party.

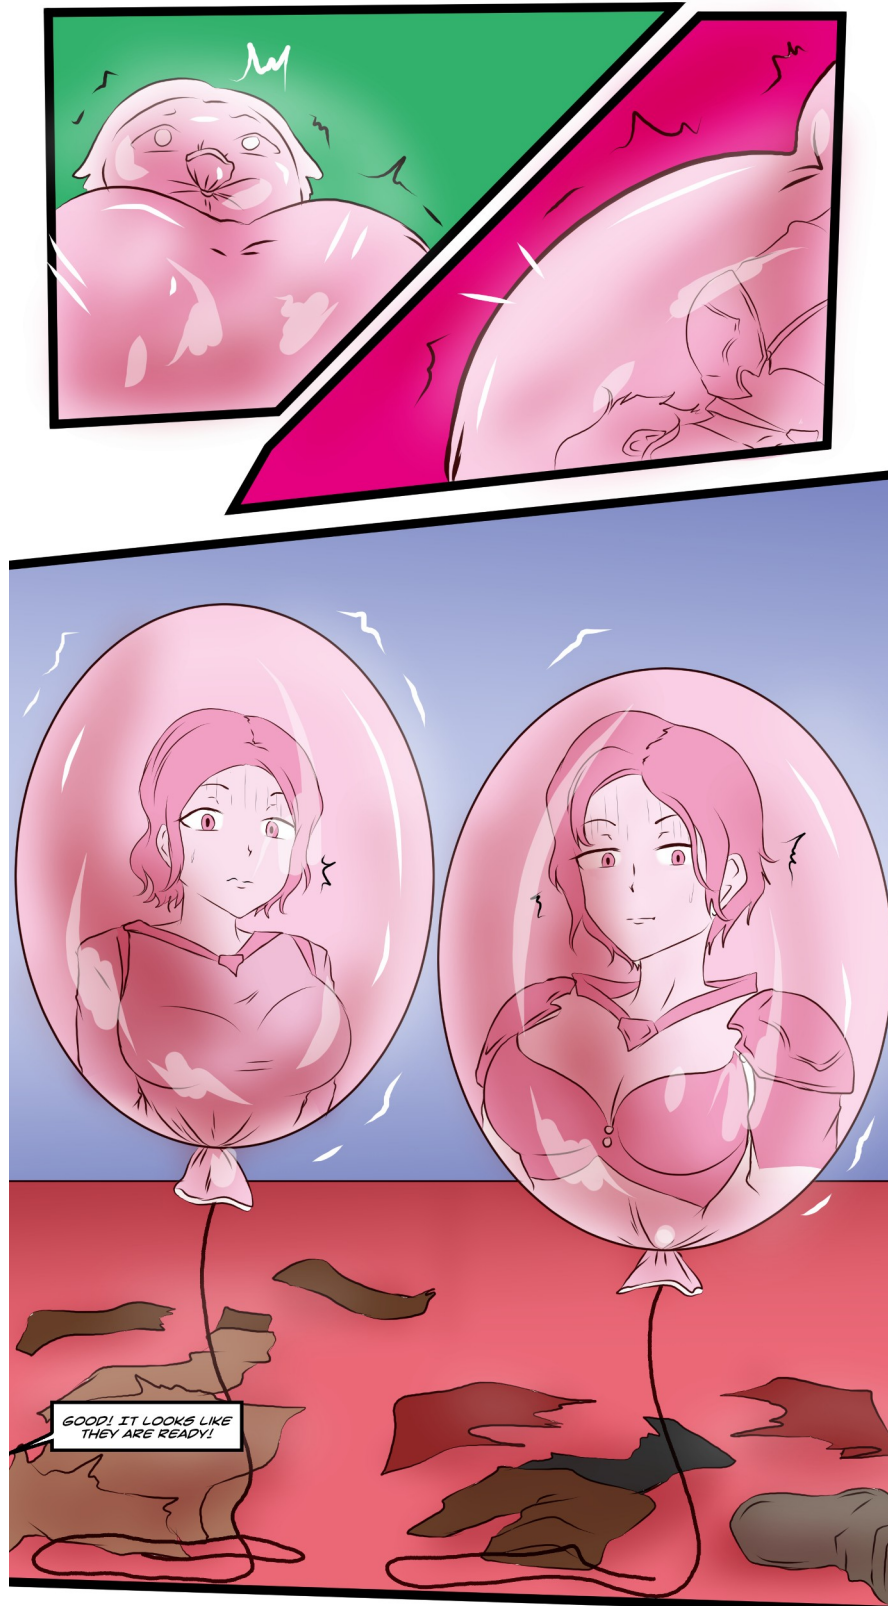

Once Karik and Nika fell into the trap, by letting Kyrie and Vertigo into their house and there being nothing else but the four of them, Kyrie wasted no time and, with her magic whip, whipped them both starting the transformation process of both of them.

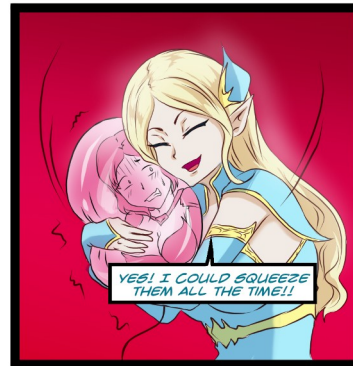

Before Karik or Nika could reproach Kyrie for her actions, they realized that her mouth had disappeared, but turned into the inflation nozzle of a balloon, something that surprised and terrified both of them quickly. Then their bodies began to inflate uncontrollably until they completely lost their shape and began to float as if there was only air inside their bodies.

Once the physical architecture of the balloon took shape and finished absorbing the bodies of Karik or Nika completely, finally only two balloons with angry faces were left floating right where both of them were and where the shredded remains of the clothes of both of them are. They are finally ready to be used as door decorations at the party.

Both victimizers (Kyrie and Vertigo) hug and squeeze them, playing with the balloons to test their limits and capabilities. The one who most took advantage of this opportunity for playfulness was Vertigo, who connected the nozzles of both balloons to two air hoses and began to fill them with more and more air, over and over again widening the volume of both balloons, scaring them both enormously (who still retain their consciousness despite being balloons), to Vertigo's sadistic pleasure.

Finally, later that evening, the partygoers were shocked as they approached the magical portal (which is the doorway to the party) to find two such realistic balloons, both of which even blushed and showed embarrassment the whole time (or at least, the pictures printed on the balloon, which is what Karik and Nika seemed to be at the time), and rushed to frolic with them and squeeze them all over their new spherical bodies.

