

Lilian

VERSE I

She has a wicked sparkle in her eyes
She always needs a little while to break the ice
She doesn't want me to take pictures when she smiles
All this is still stuck in my mind

VERSE II

She always tried to catch me by surprise
She framed the best of those above her desk in black and white
Through her lens she was my lover in disguise
It was her perfect way to hide

CHORUS

Lilian, I look at your pictures on my wall and I think
Lilian, how can someone so beautiful be insecure?
I didn't understand that all these little things you did before
Meant that you liked me even more

VERSE III

I think about her every time I'm in Berlin
About the songs we've played, the places we have been
I still remember every freckle on her skin
Not knowing what she felt within

CHORUS

Lilian, I look at your pictures on my wall and I think
Lilian, how can someone so beautiful be insecure?
I didn't understand that all these little things you did before
Meant that you liked me even more

BRIDGE

You didn't say a word to me
How should I've known you're inbetween
Giving up and giving in?

If you would still see me this way
You'd come back and you would stay
Though my hopes died yesterday...

VERSE IV

I still miss her after all this time
The sleepless nights (and) when she asked me to sing her lullabies
She took a piece with her - and now I realize
It was a piece that once was mine
